

Thought Provoking...

by Honey Brown

These pages were created to prompt and stimulate your emotions. On each page there is one word and sometimes that word is repeated many times. Ponder that word. Play with that word. Dwell on that word. Consider that word and what it does inside of you. Whatever that word does inside you, wherever it takes you, go there and create your journal page. Take each journal page and write or draw what it invokes in your innermost being. You may be inspired to write a poem, draw a picture, write an essay, or create any number of other things. You may use these pages for your personal journaling, creative writing exercises, letter writing, or whatever else they inspire in you.
